

Wage Withholding Tax Tables

The General Commission for Taxes has prepared four monthly Wage Withholding Tax Tables in order to help the employer to establish quickly the amount of income tax to deduct from the employee's pay.

The employer may use the one of the following monthly tax tables in order to determine the amount of monthly income tax to deduct from the salaries, wages and allowances earned by an employee during a particular month.

1. The monthly tax table "Wage Withholding Tax Table – Single and Married" covers the cases of single persons, married couples with no children and married couples with up to 12 children.
2. The monthly tax table "Wage Withholding Tax Table – Widow or Divorcee" covers the case of widows, divorcees and widows or divorcees with up to 12 children.
3. The monthly tax table "Wage Withholding Tax Table – Divorced Man or Widower" covers the case of divorced men, which a competent court has given custody of the children to the father and the case of widower with up to 12 children.
4. The monthly tax table "Wage Withholding Tax Table – Married woman with incapacitated husband" covers the case of married woman with an incapacitated husband having no income with up to 12 children.

The monthly tax tables take into consideration the legal allowances that a taxpayer may claim during a particular month.

According to the tax tables, there is a code allowance corresponding to the particular situation of each employee. As stated below, the amount indicated in parenthesis is the legal allowance for the year divided by 12 months:

Wage Withholding Tax Table – Single and Married

D12	=	Married woman with twelve eligible children (ID 616,667)

Examples of using the tax tables:

First example:

A single employee has worked for you, his employer in the public sector, since the beginning of year 2005. His annual salary is ID 8,400,000. You want to determine his monthly tax deduction.

Firstly, you determine what is the monthly salary of your employee. In this case, it is ID 700,000 per month (ID 8,400,000 / 12 months).

Secondly, you deduct the amount of deductions which the employee is entitled to article 8 of the Income Tax Law #113, the most usual deductions provided by the Law are social security and pension plan contributions. In this example, 7% of pension plan contributions are deducted from the employee's monthly pay (ID 49,000)

Consequently, the taxable income per month of the employee before any applicable legal allowance is ID 651,000 (700,000 – 49,000)

Thirdly, you determine the applicable code allowance for the single employee, which, in this case, is the number 0 of the table called “Wage Withholding Tax Table – Single and Married”.

Fourthly, under the column “Taxable income per month (before any applicable legal allowance)” of the tax table called “Wage Withholding Tax Table – Single and Married”, you determine the taxable income per month bracket attributable to this employee; in this case, the bracket would be ID 650,000 to ID 659,999.

Lastly, the number, ID 60,350, that corresponds in the column 0 with the taxable income per month of ID 650,000 to ID 659,999 is the amount of tax to withhold for this single employee.

Second example:

The employee as discussed above in the first example gets married in September 2005. The month after the marriage, he may claim a new code allowance number 00. Accordingly, since October 2005, the amount of monthly tax to withhold is ID 35,350.

Third example :

An employee from the private sector is married for many years and he has five children aged less than 18 years. His wife is a housewife and has no income. His annual salary is ID 6,072,000. You want to establish the monthly tax to deduct from his monthly pay.

Firstly, you determine what is the monthly salary of your employee. In this case, it is ID 506,000 per month (ID 6,072,000 / 12 months).

Secondly, you deduct the amount of deductions which the employee is entitled to article 8 of the Income Tax Law #113, the most usual deductions provided by the Law are social security and pension plan contributions. In this example, 5% of social security contributions are deducted from the employee's monthly pay (ID 25,300).

Consequently, the taxable income per month of the employee before any applicable legal allowance is ID 480,700 (ID 506,000 – ID 25,300).

Thirdly, you determine the applicable code allowance, which, in this case, is the number 5 of the table called “Wage Withholding Tax Table – Single and Married”.

Fourthly, under the column “Taxable income per month (before any applicable legal allowance)” of the tax table called “Wage Withholding Tax Table – Single and Married”, you determine the taxable income per month bracket attributable to this employee, in this case, the bracket would be ID 480,000 to ID 489,999.

Lastly, the number, ID 950, that corresponds in the column 5 with the taxable income per month of ID 480,000 to ID 489,999 is the amount of tax to withhold for a particular month for this employee.

Fourth example:

The employee as discussed above in the third example has a new child in July 2005. The month after this birth, he may claim a new code allowance, number 6. Accordingly, since August 2005, the amount of monthly tax to withhold is ID 300.

Fifth example:

A child of the employee, discussed in the third and fourth examples above dies in October 2005. . The month after this child's death, he may claim a new code allowance, which is number 5. This is a reduction from number 6, see the fourth example. Accordingly, since November 2005, the amount of monthly tax to withhold is ID 950.

Sixth example :

A widow employee has worked for you, her employer in the private sector, since the beginning of year 2004. Her annual salary is ID 4,164,000. She has two children aged less than 18 years. You want to determine her monthly tax deduction.

Firstly, you determine what is the monthly salary of your employee. In this case, it is ID 347,000 per month (ID 4,164,000 / 12 months).

Secondly, you deduct the amount of deductions which the employee is entitled to article 8 of the Income Tax Law #113, the most usual deductions provided by the Law are social security and pension plan contributions. In this example, 5% of social security contributions are deducted from the employee's monthly pay (ID 17,350).

Consequently, the taxable income per month of the employee before any applicable legal allowance is ID 329,650 (ID 347,000 – ID 17,350).

Thirdly, you determine the applicable code allowance, which, in this case, is the number M2 of the tax table called "Wage Withholding Tax Table – Widow or Divorcee".

Fourthly, under the column "Taxable income per month (before any applicable legal allowance)" of the tax table called "Wage Withholding Tax Table – Widow or Divorcee", you determine the taxable income per month bracket attributable to this employee; in this case, the bracket would be ID 320,000 to ID 329,999.

Lastly, the number, ID 850, that corresponds in the column M2 with the taxable income per month of ID 320,000 to ID 329,999 is the amount of tax to withhold for this employee.

Use of a work chart :

For any other cases not covered by the monthly tax tables published by the General Commission for Taxes, the employer has to calculate the monthly income tax deduction by himself. For this purpose, a work chart is provided in the free brochure named "User's guide for the wage withholding tax" in order to help him to determine the amount of tax to withhold on a monthly basis.
